A participant can send several journals. A travel journal already offered in a previous edition of this competition cannot be offered again.

Article 6: Respect for copyright

Copyright credits must be acquired (author, title, etc.). The production of these travel diaries can either be created from material elements produced specifically for the occasion, or be carried out by combining or exploiting elements already existing but free of all rights. Participants are fully responsible for their works. In the event of non-compliance with copyright relating to images and any reproduction whatsoever, Clermont Auvergne University reserves the right to suspend publication and to consider the production as inadmissible.

Article 7: Transfer of reproduction and adaptation rights

The authors of the journal graciously authorize the Clermont Auvergne University to digitize and reproduce all or part of their journal for publication on its various communication media. In return, Clermont Auvergne University undertakes to explicitly mention the names of the authors, their establishment at the time of producing the journal, the title of the works used, and the year of their creation. Clermont Auvergne University also undertakes to inform the authors of any publication of these reproductions; in the event of publication on the internet, it will provide the authors with the link to the page(s) concerned; in the event of publication in paper form, it will keep a copy available to authors who request it.

Article 8: Use of notebooks for research

The authors of the travel journals authorize the Clermont Auvergne University to make the digitized version of their notebooks available to researchers who request it, for consultation and possible citation in the context of university studies. Clermont Auvergne University undertakes to ensure that the right to quote is done in accordance with the rules, will inform the authors of the cited works and provide them with the link to the publication.

Article 9: Liability

The organizers cannot be held responsible if, following an event of force majeure, the international university prize for the travel journal had to be cancelled, postponed or modified, as well as any loss, delay or damage in the delivery of the productions.

Article 10: Selection of winners

A jury is responsible for evaluating the productions. The winner(s) will be selected according to the following criteria: production, originality and presentation.

The winning prize is the awarding of an international student university prize in the amount of €500.
